Joint Disease in the Horse – 9781455759699

The metacarpophalangeal (MCP) joint is known to be the equine joint most susceptible to damage. 55 It is the MCP joint that, together with the carpal joint, has received most attention in terms of effect of exercise. This can be explained to a large extent by the high incidence of condylar fractures in the MCP joint and of third carpal bone slab fractures in the carpus in racehorses.
