Touch is love, it is a baby's first introduction to love, starting as early as eight weeks into their gestational journey. It is connection at our very primal source. Without safe touch babies struggle to move beyond the very first hurdle of attachment and remain in a constant state of fight flight and freeze as the amygdala perceives

Nurturing touch helps meet a baby's need for physical contact, affection, security, stimulation and movement. Parents who choose a nurturing approach to physical interactions with their children promote development of healthy attachments. Even as children get older their need to stay connected through touch remains strong.

in most cases pregnancy and childbirth are normal natural states in women's lives. We also believe that BIRTH should be incredible, treasured and an experience to remember. Women should take control of their pregnancy by educating themselves on the many options available to them during birth, which in turn will have a great impact on the outcome of their health and that of their new born.
